The original allegations that the army and some staff aides were involved in efforts to secure treatment for Pvt. G. Schine.

The source said the new state charges are "more specific" in alleging that McCarthy was the hand of Roy M. Cohn, the army's chief counsel, in securing a commission and special assignment in New York for Schine.

Before he was drafted last November, Schine was an unpaid consultant to the subcommittee.

McCarthy and Cohn disputed the allegations, and leveled countercharges of a "blackmail" effort by the Pentagon aimed at blocking the investigations by the subcommittee into alleged Communist infiltration of the Army. They have been accused of having yet to file the subcommittee formal reports of what they hope to Meanwhile, Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) reports he planned more work with parliamentarians and others to prepare for the writing of rules under which the inquiry will proceed.

McCarty's aides have stepped up their efforts to get the inquiry off to a good start, and he has urged not to vote on the inquiry, concerning the inquiry, he still is not clear just what status he will have and whether he will cross-examine witnesses.

Dulles Returns

10-nation alliance similar to NATO, proposed for the southeastern Pacific, "has been enhanced by my talks."

The proposed alliance would aim to stem Communist expansion in Indochina and the rest of Southeast Asia.

Dulles discussed the matter this week in London with British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Dulles said "our common purpose" was set forth in joint statements issued after each of those talks.

He pointed out that Thailand already had agreed to participate in the proposed 10-nation alliance and added "now President Magsaysay of the Philippines has indicated willingness to participate."

Dulles said he believed the proposed 10-nation alliance would head off Communist ambition to control Southeast Asia.

He declined to answer any questions and said "I now have another very important engagement."

He referred to his visit to his Lake Ontario retreat before going to Washington and returning to Paris early next week.

He left for Main Duck Island in a two-engine amphibian aircraft. Mrs. Dulles accompanied the secretary.

In Paris, American sources conceded formal negotiations for the proposed alliance probably could get underway before the Geneva conference on the Far East, scheduled to open April 26.

State Department aides in Washington said "working parties" would be set up within a few days to chart specific steps toward forming the united front in the shortest possible time.

Dulles was reported anxious to get talks on the Pacific pact started as soon as possible to help counter any expansionist ambitions the Russians and Communist Chinese might bring to Geneva.

The Americans aimed for concrete progress toward an alliance before the Geneva talks get around to Indochina, perhaps several weeks after the conference opening.

The American secretary's agreement with British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault to "examine the possibility" of an NATO-type alliance for the Pacific produced rumblings were as well as praise around the globe.

The Eisenhower administration's leader in the U. S. Senate, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) told the upper chamber in Washington that if Nationalist China and South Korea were left out, "you have a paper pact and not an effective alliance."

Several Democratic senators also challenged the administration's Pacific policy. Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) said the "examination" Dulles, Eden and Bidault had announced "might take a long time and maybe there isn't enough time for it."

However, Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee and Chairman Wiley (R-Wis.) of the Senate foreign Relations Committee praised the results of Dulles' mission.

"This may be the answer to our troubles in the Pacific," Wiley said.

Britain's opposition labor party split wide open over possible British participation. American Bayly, fiery leader of the party's high command group because its moderate leadership had not opposed the project. British observers figured most of his followers would join him in the revolt against former Prime Minister Clement Attlee, the party's leader.

In France, already almost over head in the Indochina war, the proposed alliance seemed likely to stir little heavy opposition except from the Communists.

Indian newspaper bitterly criticized the Dulles-Eden-Bidault proposal as a blow to any chances of progress at the Geneva conference.

Th three foreign secretaries envision that Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, the Philippines and the three Associated States of Indochina would join them in

Says Business Expansion Awaits Bill

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, (AP) Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey today urged speedy congressional action on President Eisenhower's big tax overhaul bill, saying much business expansion is waiting for it to become law.

In a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the opening of its three-day annual meeting here, Humphrey also said the nation's economy is withstanding the downturn of military production "remarkably well."

"I am confident of the future and that we are not now headed for a depression," he told the approximately 400 editors.

But he said fast passage of the brand tax revision measure now pending would have a tremendous helpful effect upon the economy.

"While the bill is basically a 'long-overdue tax reform,' the secretary said, 'it can help greatly the current economic transition.'"

The giant $75-page tax measure, already passed by the House, is now the subject of hearings before the Senate committee. As now worded it would ease the tax load on business and individuals by an estimated $1,400,000,000 the first year.

Humphrey said, "There are many business projects around the country which are being held up pending final decision on this revision bill. When the bill is enacted these new or expanding businesses can go ahead with their plans, which will result in the creation of thousands of jobs and the vital expansion of our economy."

An estimated 27 million cars and trucks in the United States are equipped with radios.

Thailand already has announced she is willing. Australia and New Zealand said immediately they would be glad to discuss a pact. France presumably could assure participation of the Indochinese states.

The 10th candidate the Philippines, is still studying the proposal.

Railman Wounded in Camden Shooting

CAMDEN, (AP) — Former Camden nightclub operator M. L. (Bill) Turner was charged today with assault to kill in the shooting of a Little Rock railroad executive.

Sheriff Bill Smead said the charge will be charged to murder if the victim, 52-year-old Lloyd R. Squire, dies.

Squire, general agent for the Kansas City Southern and Arkansas-Louisiana railroads who was shot down at a swanky apartment building here yesterday, remained in a critical condition at Ouachita County Hospital.

CAMDEN, (AP) — A Little Rock railroad official was wounded critically yesterday in a shooting at an apartment building here.

Sheriff Bill Smead said Lloyd R. Squire, 52, general agent for the Kansas City Southern and Arkansas-Louisiana railroads, was found lying in a doorway to the building, wounded in the chest and right ear.

Smead said M. L. (Bill) Turner, former operator of the Glass Hat nightclub here, is being held for investigation. No charges were filed yesterday.

Police Chief G. B. Cole said he received a call from Turner's divorced wife, who lives at the apartment house, saying that "Bill has shot a man."

When officers arrived at the apartment house, saying that "Bill has shot a man."

When officers arrived at the scene, Cole said, Turner was standing beside his car and surrounded peacefully.

Squire's residence is in North Little Rock.

PO Promotions to Bypass Politics

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An official of the U. S. Post Office Department said here last night that the Eisenhower Administration will take the department's promotion system out of the hands of politicians and put it on a merit system.

Norman R. Abrams, assistant postmaster general in charge of operations, made the statement to the Arkansas chapter of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States.

The administration already has cut the postal department's daily loss by one million dollars a day, Abrams said, and further savings will be effected through increased use of labor saving devices.

He mentioned such mechanical improvements scheduled for future installation as right-hand drive trucks, automatic lifts and conveyors and machines which face and cancel mail.

Rust Leaves Money for Welfare

PINE BLUFF, (AP) John D. Rust, inventor of the Rust cotton picker, left the bulk of his estate to the Rust Foundation for use of the "welfare of mankind."

His will was filed for probate here today. Rust died Jan. 20, 1954.

His widow, Mrs. John D. Rust, was named co-executor, along with the inventor's brother, Mack D. Rust, of California. She has filed a petition seeking to be made sole executrix of the estate.

Mrs. Rust claims in the petition that her brother-in-law "does not qualify and is not a suitable person to serve as co-executor" of the estate because he is plaintiff in a suit involving royalties on the cotton picker. The suit is pending in chancery court here.

A hearing on Mrs. Rust's petition will be held by Chancellor Carleton Harrison on April 26.

The total value of Rust's estate probably won't be determined until after an inventory is taken following the hearing on Mrs. Rust's petition. The value of his personal effects was estimated at $4,000.

Rust's will provides that all royalties, all capital stock, and all letters of patents in his estate will go to the Rust Foundation.

It also provides that Mrs. Rust will not receive any stock letters or royalty on letters of patent.

The will provides that the Rust Foundation will be administered by a three-member board which will include Mrs. Rust. She will receive compensation as a trustee of the foundation as not "more than ten times the compensation of the lowest full-time employee of the Rust Foundation."

The document also provides that she will receive all bonds, motor cars, jewelry, clothes and all other personal effects.

Rust executed the will in Memphis, where he was living, in Aug. 6, 1939, long before his cotton picker was perfected and long before the Rust Foundation was established.

Home Town "Interest"

Colonel Smith, president of our local bank, has been lending money to merchants in town at less than usual interest rates.

"Don't get the idea it's charity," the Colonel told me. "It's not even philanthropy—just sound business!"

"Money that makes our shopping district more attractive to customers will help the bank in the long run. So I'm glad to make funds available—cheap."

From where I sit, the Colonel has some sentimental reasons—as well as "hard-headed" business ones—for wanting to see our town spruced up. But that doesn't change the fact that a good appearance makes for good business. Look at the beer retailers. They co-operate voluntarily with the Self-Regulation program sponsored by the Brewing Industry to make sure their places are clean and tidy all the time. That way, they can "bank" on good business—and good will—from the public.

Let's Take a Little Trip on the Strip

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. Let's take a trip on the Strip.

Every night is carnival night on the Las Vegas Strip, which has 10 times the glitter and glamor of the Sunset Strip in Hollywood. So we'll tour the spots and talk to some of the world's highest paid shills (definition: those hired to induce gambling).

First stop is the Sahara, which is a symbol of the town's boom. A new wing is being started doubling the number of rooms. And that still won't be enough to accommodate the crowds.

Starring at the Sahara are the Ames brothers, a towering quartet of clever singers, and George Gobel, who looks more like a graduate student in anthropology than a comic. But he's a very funny man. NBC must think so having signed him for five years for his own show which may start in the fall. He'll fly to Fort Worth Sunday to do the Comedy Hour.

"I sang and played the guitar on radio in Chicago before the war," George tells us. "I was a parlor comedian, but never told a joke on the air. But when I was in the Army—I flew B24s—I got a chance to do some comedy. I've been doing it ever since."

We move on to the Desert Inn, where Patti Page is headlining. Say there's a cute dish. With a few pounds shaved, she could rival Doris Day in the movie sweepstakes.

Next to the Sands to watch Mary Healy and Peter Lind Hayes, married performers who complement each other beautifully. We go backstage, making our way through the showgirls. We find the Hayeses as happy together offstage as on. I ask them about their movie, "The 5,000 Fingers of Dr. T." Some folks like myself enjoyed it, but the film flopped.

"The title was bad," explains Mary. "People thought it was a horror picture, instead of a wonderful fantasy. But we hear Columbia is going to get a new title and bring it back again. It still might make money."

It's 2:30 a. m., but the Strip is still jumping. So I let's head for the late show at the Last Frontier's Silver Slipper. This is the favorite meeting place of all the show people in town thanks largely to an outrageous comic named Hank Henry. He's a produce of the Borscht Circuit, the upstate New York resorts that spawned Danny Kaye, Sid Caesar, etc. Some day the movies or TV will discover Hank, who could be another way Berry.

We drop backstage to see the guest star at the Silver Slipper, Buster Keaton. A morose-faced as ever, he tells of his recent troubles in Europe, where a producer tried to attach his belongings.

"It was my agent's fault," he said. "I was booked two places at once. When the case came up, I was given a womanlawyer, who Herndon, Jr. Mrs. Leahroy Spates made a brief report of the Junior Garden Club meeting at Brookwood School. The annual Hat Show was announced for Tuesday, May 11, and plans made to enter hats in the four divisions. The May meeting was changed to the first Tuesday, May 4, to avoid a conflict with the Hat Show.

The program included the "Thought for the Day" by Mrs. W. H. Etter; an interesting book review on the charming bird story "Crisp Come Home" given by Mrs. Lahroy Spates; and a clever quiz conducted by Mrs. Daniel Blake. Mrs. Arch Moore won the prize. First place in the flower arrangement judging went to Mrs. Owen Nix, with Mrs. R. V. Herndon, Jr. placing second. Mrs. E. O. Wingfield judged and scored the winning arrangement in lecture form.

The hostesses served a dessert plate of ice cream molded in the shape of an Easter lily, white cake and coffee. There were 18 members present.

Coming and Going
Robert Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Bruce, motored home from southern Louisiana to spend the Easter holidays with his parents and friends. Bobby is a freshman at L. S. U.

DOROTHY DIX Cynical Spinsters

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a single woman in my middle twenties with a nice job. Since I work closely with several older single women, I am becoming well aware of what happens to them as they grow older, and I visualize myself traveling the same road. They are cynical, selfish, insist on having things their way, and their minds are closed to any suggestions of modernized methods, etc. They are so accustomed to living alone that they are forgetting there are other people in the world. I, too, am getting very irritable over details that don't suit me. While I live with my family, I realize I'm no joy to them. I fuss over trifles, am annoyed when things aren't done as I want them and become very indignant if someone else monopolizes the television or radio. I don't want to be like these older women; how can I avoid it?

Old Maid Of Past W. W.

Answer: You are setting the cause of womanhood back two generations by assuming the role of "old maid" as it was lived in the dim past. Fiction (and fact) of the early years of the century was replete with sketches of the unmarried female relative who had a passion for orderliness, an acrimonious tongue and a closed mind. The opening of so many new fields in industry and the professions to women, and also incidental hobbies, supposedly did away with this type; but, apparently, such spinsters are heard of now and then.

With your realization that the "old maid" characteristics are creeping up on you, you certainly should be able to do something about it. You are mixing with the wrong kind of people and you are not enjoying any of the fun that should be available. You need friends, some interesting activities to provide the mental, emotional and physical stimulation that will rescue you from the little world in which you feel you should reign.

The prescription sounds easy; fortunately, it's equally easy to fill. You live in a large city with every available source of entertainment and education. Though you say nothing about the type job you hold, my guess would be that it's more figured it would be smart if I pleaded I was broke."

He says he isn't. He doesn't have the fortune he earned in the silent films divorce settlements took that. But he has been working steadily, some in TV, but mostly abroad.

or less routine work offering no intellectual challenge. A change of work offering better personal contacts and more stimulating activity would be beneficial for you. It wouldn't hurt to interview a few employment agencies to ascertain what positions might be available. Then sign up for a night course or two in subjects you have always found interesting. One immediate advantage will be that you'll come home at night too tired to worry about whether the sofa was moved or not. The ultimate good will be the substitution of active thinking for the meaningless round of trivia that occupies your mind. You are much too young and intelligent to become prey to pettiness. Just do something to break away from the present monotonous grind and give yourself a chance to become a really worthwhile person.

Dear Miss Dix: My fiancé is an only child and he feels he should take his parents out every Sunday and holiday. While I like them very much, I think it would be nice if my beau and I went out alone occasionally. Am I unreasonable.

Answer: Your contention is certainly fair enough, but at least you are being shown what to expect from your fiancé when he becomes a husband. His reluctance to set a wedding date, plus his devotion to his family, make it fairly obvious that he's not in a marrying mood.

Dear Miss Dix: I have fallen very much in love with a widow who has two children, 7 and 8. The younger child, a boy, is very fond of me, but the girl is very jealous of any attention her mother gives me. Is there any way you can suggest for remedying this situation?

Answer: The recalcitrant youngster has just become accustomed to being the center of her mother's world and is determined not to relinquish her position. It permitted to get away with it, she's going to ruin the lives of everyone near her. A consultation at a child behavior clinic would be the soundest approach to the problem.

BURNS TO DEATH
WEST MEMPHIS —The body of Mrs. Arthur F. Fryer, 30, was found in the charred bedroom of her home here yesterday.

Fire Chief Elmo Anderson said the fire, origin unknown, apparently started in the bedroom and was largely confined there. No one else was hurt.

"In another generation at the most the process will be completed. Then only ignorant people will be men. But they won't be really men they'll be abject prisoners. Worse even — slaves."

"Just how do you figure that out?" I asked.

"Well," he replied, "let's look at what is happening. In the old days a man came home tired and hungry and looking for peace. His wife was all worn out, too, from toiling in firewood, doing the washing, lugging water from the well, feeding the kids and slopping the pigs — and maybe even milking a few cows.

"Both husband and wife were too exhausted to pick on each other and marriage was a draw."

"You mean it isn't now?" I murmured.

"Anybody with any sense knows it isn't," he replied sharply. "The husband still comes home all worn out from work. But the housewife has so many gadgets to lighten her labor that she still has some fight left in her at nightfall. This gives her a big edge in an argument the husband simply doesn't have the strength left to defend himself."

"And you think this situation will get worse?" I inquired.

"Worse?" he whined. "Wake up, man, you're facing utter disaster. In the pushbutton home of the future, a wife will press one button — and zingo! The dishes are washed. She plays another small tune on a control panel and the vacuum cleaner will gallop around the house and clean it up in 15 minutes."

"The wife will then have the rest of the day in which to lie down and rest while she dreams up new ways to act as a Monday morning quarterback to her husband."

"When he comes home, all worn out naturally, she will push another button and out will pop his pre-cooked, pre-frozen dinner. By the time he has gulped it down there is mama, fresh and strong as a buffalo in April, ready to tell him 1,001 things that are wrong with him. What chance has he to argue back? He's all worn out from earning her a living."

"All he can do is to sit there and cry, remembering a time when men were men, and swords hung from their side."

"Marriage in the future will be strictly a one-way deal — and it'll be the woman's way. Wouldn't anyone with a grain of intellect prefer being a woman in that kind of

Concealment for Reds Top Operation

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The government has charged that the underground concealment of the five Communist leaders, Robert Thompson and Sidney Hillman, was a top-level Communist operation known in party circles as "Operation Mollie."

U. S. Attorney Robert Steinberg hinted at the intricate surveillance "Operation Mollie" in his opening statements yesterday at the trial of Steinberg and four other persons charged with conspiring to harbor the much-wanted fugitives, who were rooted out of their hideout by the FBI last August.

A jury of seven women and men was selected to try the case during the morning of the session.

The defendants are Steinberg, former assistant national secretary of the party and himself a fugitive from a Smith Act indictment; Edwin Ross, 41, former Mine Safety party secretary; Sam Coleman, 43, Red leader in New York and Buffalo; Janet Conroy, 42, Patricia Blau, 42, former Communist organizer and Mrs. Shirley Keith Kramon, 22, former left wing student leader at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Thompson was one of the nation's 11 top Reds convicted in New York in 1949 of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government. He was former New York State Communist chairman.

"Oh, well! I still think that guy is probably as nutty as a peach grove," but on the other hand, hmmm, hmmm, hmmm."

Arkansas high schools, their athletes and their fans hit a high mark on the scales for clean, well-managed sports.

That is the opinion of the officials who work the schoolboy sports in this state.

Of the 479 schools which had basketball teams this year, only 43 received a poor rating in any department on the report cards filed by officials with the Arkansas Athletic Association after each game.

Of 162 football schools last fall only 14 got any kind of poor rating.
 Ratings are based on player and crowd sportsmanship, dressing room and playing field or court facilities, the extent to which a school's athletic program is controlled by school administrators and whether there was any evidence of betting at games.

Much has been made of the fact that the Camp Chaffee basketball team which won the national Army championship was organized just before the tournament.

That's true, but don't get the idea that those boys were unaccustomed to playing with each other. Five of the 12 members of the Chaffee team had played together all season on the Millers
 Jewellery of Fort Smith, winning 18 games and losing only three against tough independent opposition at some colleges.

 is the former Clarksville boy who was a star end for the University the Rams.

President Tunes Up for Easter Holiday

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower, starting an Easter holiday, tunes up his golf today for a round later in the week with the sensational North Carolina amateur who came close to winning the Masters Tournament.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, arrived here by plane from Washington last night for about a 10-day stay at "Mamie's Cabin," named for the First Lady, on the edge of the Augusta National Golf Club.

Eisenhower found most of the talk at the club still centering on 31-year-old Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., whose play in the Masters won him probably more attention than the winner.

Patton finished the regular 72-hole tournament at the Augusta National with a 290, just a stroke more than Sam Snead and Ben Hogan, Snead won in a playoff.

Bobby Jones, president of the Augusta National, met Eisenhower at the airport and told newsmen neither Snead nor Hogan had been able to stay over for a game with the President.

But Jones said Patton had been invited back to the club for the Easter weekend. He probably will team up with Eisenhower Friday.

The President left the nation's capital after watching the Washington Senators defeat the world champion New York Yankees in a 10-inning baseball thriller at Griffith Stadium.

"How did you like the ball game?" a reporter called to the President as he came down the ramp from his private plane, the Columbine, at Augusta's Bush Airport.

"Oh, wonderful," he replied with a wide grin. "Particularly that FOR ATHLETE'S FOOT USE A KERATOLYTIC BECAUSE —

Tracy Happy to Return to Own Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Spencer Tracy, doing his first loanout in 15 years, is happy to be back at the studio where he says he was once fired.

Tracy, long a member of the MGM star team, is doing "Broken Lance" for 20th Century-Fox. The price for his services is probably around $150,000. But that's not the reason for his satisfaction. A couple of decades ago, when the studio was just plain Fox, he was under contract there.

"They fired me," he said. "Those were the days when I was still drinking, and I got drunk now and then. But never on a picture — always between. Anyway, they worried about me."

"I was all set for a big expensive picture. But they came to me and asked if I was going to behave. I told them, 'That's a heck of a way to get me to behave! If you're worried about me, why don't you let me go?'"

"That's all they needed. I wasn't

The opening song was "May Jesus Christ Be Praised."

The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. C. Stegar, followed with reports of general officers and committee chairman.

Mrs. C. H. Moore announced that April 11-18 would be observed as Spiritual Enrichment week. Mrs. Frank Gerig of Arkadelphia will review the book "The Glory of the Church" on April 19th beginning at 10 a. m.

Mrs. W. G. Bensberg and Mrs. T. C. McRae Jr. were elected delegates to attend Presbyterian in Texarkana April 27-28.

Mrs. McRae assisted by Mrs. Dallas Atkins, Mrs. Bob Robertson, Mrs. Jim Nelson and Mrs. Guss McCaskill, presented the program on "World Christian Youth Blaze New Paths" in the form of a television panel discussion.

Mrs. Bensberg accompanied by Mrs. Stegar at the piano, sang a beautiful solo, "At Length Thine Dawns the Glorious Day."

The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. McRae.

a box office star or anything, and they were happy to see me go. I was out of the studio the same day.

"But one thing pleased me about the whole affair. At 8 o'clock that night, my agent took me over to MGM to have a talk with Louis B. Mayer. At 9 o'clock I was signed to a contract and I've been there ever since."

The rest of course is Hollywood history. Within three years, Tracy had won two Oscars for "Captains Courageous" and "Boys Town." His former bosses at Fox must have been burning.

"But they had the last word," Tracy admitted. "Somebody discovered that I still owed the studio a picture. So I went back and did 'Stanley and Livingstone' in 1939."

Tracy, who ranks with beer as one of Milwaukee's most notable products, is still going strong, having turned 54 last week. His hair is white, but he still has his youthful bounce and lively sense of humor.

There had been reports that he would be leaving MGM, along with Clark Gable, Greer Garson and other long-time stars. Tracy is now one of the longest last stars on the lot. He said:

"Will I sign again? I don't know. At first I didn't think I would because I didn't think they wanted me. Nobody said anything about staying. I think that's why a lot of actors leave."

"But we have started having talks, and something may come of it. I still have three pictures to make for them. After that, who knows?"

Arkansan Gets First Major Homer

By ED WILKS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The young lefty stood relaxed at the plate. The count was two balls, no strikes. Then a fast ball came in. He swung easily, met it squarely and the ball bounced atop the right field pavilion roof for a home run.

That's how Wallace Wade Moon, of Bay, Arkansas, who had never seen a major league game before made his debut as a St. Louis Cardinal in Busch Stadium yesterday against the Chicago Cubs.

The Homer, a good 360-foot clout, came in the first inning, adding Moon to the list of rookies who have slugged home runs on their first trip to the plate in the majors. It didn't have much to do with the game's outcome, however, as Chicago won, 13-4.

"It was quite a thrill," said Moon, named by his sports fan father for Wallace Wade, coach of Alabama's Rose Bowl football team in 1930, the year Wally was born.

"Sure I was nervous," he admitted. "But I felt good at the plate."

"I was more nervous in the field than at bat."

The Cards' new center fielder had cause to be nervous. Not only was it his first major league game, but he was in the lineup replacing Enos Slaughter, the veteran fan favorite who was traded to the New York Yankees Sunday.

Vandals Wreck Several Cars

LITTLE ROCK, Mo. — Vandals released the brakes on at least six parked automobiles in Little Rock's elite Palaski Heights area last night.

One car rolled down a hill and crashed into a rock wall another tumbled into a ravine. He gasoline tank on still another car was punctured.

Police are working on the description of a group of boys given by a witness who saw them turn loose one of the cars.

to make room for youngsters like Moon. Some fans, resenting the trade, shouted "Where's Slaughter?" when the Cards took the field. But they gave Moon a good hand when he stepped up to bat. Seconds later the cheers became a roar as the ball cleared the right field screen.

Man Shocks Vets Then Kills Self

CONWAY, Mo. — A 42-year-old man, who had been in the service of the United States Army, shot himself in the head Sunday morning after a fight with a woman.

The man, who was a member of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post, was found by a neighbor.

The sheriff said the man was a member of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post, and was a member of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

Americans Fly in Supplies to French

HANOI, Indochina (UP) — American cargo planes landed in Indochina today with war material for the "fighting fools" of Dien Bien Phu, now coping with an ammunition shortage under heavy artillery fire from the Communists.

The two-engine C-47's arrived at Surane Air Base, south of Hanoi, with American pilots at the controls. French bull's-eye markings were painted on the planes at Clark Field in the Philippines.

The new planes were turned over to French Union forces for use by French pilots. The Americans will return to their bases on the next planes leaving Indochina.

Communist artillerymen began the 33rd day of their costly campaign to take Dien Bien Phu with blistering barrage against the French garrison.

Hours after heavy shells from 120-millimeter mortars and 105-millimeter howitzers hit the fortress's defense perimeter or exploded over trenches and earth-and-log bunkers.

But Dien Bien Phu's "fighting fools" were ordered to hold their fire to save precious shells, even though some of the Red artillery emplacements were only 1,500 yards away.

The hold-your-fire order was issued in anticipation of a mass assault by the Reds against the fortress.

The weather was good and French-piloted transports took off regularly from Red-river delta airbases with food, ammunition and medicine for the garrison.

United Press Correspondent Gene Symonds reported from Hanoi that the pilots said they flew to Clark Field from Korea and Japan under sealed orders and knew their destination only after they had taken off for Indochina. They will return to their outposts on the next planes leaving Indochina on airlift duty.

A recent shipment of B-26 attack bombers, thoroughly checked by American Air Force technicians, went into action for the first time in Indochina with French pilots at the controls. They dropped loads of bombs and flaming jellied gasoline on Communist Indochinese troops encircling Dien Bien Phu in northwest Viet Nam.

Healthy Gland Best Guard Against Germs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
A Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP) — Some germs are dangerous dead or alive, and healthy glands seem to be a good defense against their double punch, new experiments reported today indicate.

There are germs which are dangerous while alive. But they also contain a hidden poison inside them. This poison is released when the body kills and breaks up the germs.

How you react in both battles may well depend partly upon having healthy adrenal glands, glands which are neither too lazy nor too active, the new studies suggest. This could explain different reactions to infections because of age or health conditions.

The new studies made in mice were described to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Doctors R.D.G. Higginbotham and Thomas F. Dougherty of the University of Utah School of Medicine, Salt Lake City.

The adrenal glands, located atop the kidneys, produce a potent hormone, cortisone. Resistance to some infections is reduced by giving certain adrenal extracts. But the injections can increase resistance.

Much Depends on Endurance of Mr. Dulles

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — If energy was the sole test, John Foster Dulles already would be one of the most successful secretaries of state in American history.

Now 66, and in office less than 15 months, he has traveled more than four times in the distance around the earth in pursuit of American well-being since he became secretary.

Now he's on a rush trip to London and Paris to be sure he and the British and French foreign ministers see eye-to-eye when they meet with the Russians and Chinese Communists in Geneva April 26.

Then he will fly back here, report to President Eisenhower, and then turn around and fly to Geneva. Dulles' endurance has been impressive. Obviously, he's overworked.

But history with icy detachment will appraise him not on his energy or his earnestness but on his vision, his judgment and his backbone. All three face a major test at Geneva's conference on peace in Korea and Indochina.

More than peace in either place is involved. The Communists could consider the whole conference successful if they split the United States and France or, through propaganda, diminished this country's stature a little.

Since last summer there has been a truce in Korea but no peace. And in the eight-year-old war between the French and the Communist-led Vietnamese in Indochina there is no sign of either truce or peace.

Peace in Korea seems impossible. The United States wants Korea united in free elections, which the South Korean government, an American ally, would be sure to win if only because the South Koreans outnumber the North Koreans. It's hard to see the Communists buying that.

Somehow, perhaps, they might be willing to stop helping the Vietnamese against the French, which would mean a French victory. Even that sounds like wishful thinking. But if they did, there's a price tag attached. What price?

The Chinese may have thought they could make a deal for themselves when their ally arranged to let them sit in at Geneva, their first invitation to a conference of the big powers.

The United States doesn't recognize it and it has opposed Peiping's seating in the United Nations where Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist regime sits as the recognized government of China.

The Chinese may have felt—but guessing that for some reason, when anyone suggests this he's sions on Korea or Indochina they could get recognition by the United States and a seat in the U. N., replacing Chiang.

In a New York speech March 29 Dulles seemed to close the door on both possibilities, so far as this country is concerned. Even if he wanted to do business on those terms, he's under tremendous congressional pressure not to.

He's been very careful about listening to Congress. What then has he left for horse-trading with the Chinese at Geneva? Or is he only going there will demands that they make peace in Korea and Indochina on American terms?

He has called for "united action" among American allies in Indochina to help the French—apparently before he had discussed it with the Allies.

If this is his bargaining point—a warning the Allies may jump into Indochina if the Chinese don't agree to help end the war there—it will work only if the Communists buy it. If not, the eventual result may be war.

The Eisenhower administration is talking of easy trade restrictions on Russia. Perhaps Dulles hopes this will sound attractive enough to the Russians to make them pressure their Chinese ally.

Dulles will have to guard against Communist promises directed at the French in a move it split them away from this country.

If he goes to Geneva so rigidly—and publicly—determined to have his way entirely on his own terms, the Communists may turn his steadfastness against him for their own propaganda advantages by making proposals they know he can't accept but which might sound plausible to American allies.

The mice reacted badly even when injected with dead germs. The germs, dead or alive, are broken up by the spleen, and their poison is released. The mice with no adrenal glands "actually commit suicide by destroying the bacteria and thereby liberating this material."

S. Money ails to Bail Out French

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — The United States may have to get into the "hot" war to bail out the French who have been beaten in a campaign by the Communist-led Vietnamese, this country has more than a billion dollars to bail out the French with their equipment. Why, with all this money, aren't they winning?

Russians and Red Chinese have been helping the Vietnamese. Members of Congress, natives of China, and American reporters all give this as the main reason for French failure.

Colonial-minded French do not have the wholehearted support of the Indo-Chinese. Millions of them have been demanding independence. This has not been given them. If they had, they'd have a stake in winning the French war.

But millions of the Indo-Chinese are now in Vietnam-occupied territory. About 18 million in the north area.

Millions behind the French are either anti-French or pro-Communist. Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Vietnamese, is a lifelong Communist. He is also a nationalist.

He fought for independence all his life. The Vietnamese isn't all Communist. It has the support of nationalists who want freedom from the French.

The French do not have the support of other Asian people, who upon the war is an attempt to bail out the French and the West to dominate, not end, hated colonialism.

The crisis comes at a time when the United States had to stand by the Communist take over and is anxious that no more falls into Red hands.

French are sick of the war. They would not continue unless they were given the equipment they need. They want to continue unless they are given the equipment they need.

Jim made a pot of strong coffee in Mansfield's kitchen, and drank it black. He decided it was safe, going by Pardon's report to leave the manuscripts, and the rather forlorn hope they represented to him.

The testimony of Nash and Vern Bruce supplied a reason for those wrenches. Mansfield did repair jobs, both plumbing and electrical. A man in his seventies, a writer of sorts, and yet a man who obviously enjoyed working with his hands. And yet there was the soundproofing job which had been done by Stone's company.

Jim shrugged that away. After all, there was considerable difference between putting and "under-taking" a reconstruction job such as that. An expensive reconstruction job.

The coffee had cleared his head, even while adding a detachment, a feeling of unreality that made objects seem shimmering and fluid.

He left the dreggy cup on the sink, made certain the fire was off in the gas stove, and found the flashlight the officer had left with him when the man went off duty.

Jim felt no sense of guilt for the fact that he had held out on Mark Richards. Or rather, that he had diverted attention so Mark had not asked a really vital question.

It was obvious, from the sheer chance which had brought Chief Drover to his place of death, that his choice as victim had also been a matter of chance. Any well-known or wealthy man would have served the extortioner's purpose.

Yet, according to testimony, the two monsters had been on the sidewalk in front of the theater for a full 10 minutes. Why had no other appropriate victim come along?

The reception, of course. Anyone who was anyone in Colorado City had attended, with the possible exception of Peter Atwood who was so wedded to his bank. It had been sheer misfortune for Otto Drover, excellent fortune for the extortioner, that the one-time chief of police had come along.

There remained an important matter to be cleared up about Eddie Stone. According to the autopsy report, the cut on Eddie's arm matched the bloodstain inside the sleeve of the jumper on smock. The same sleeve which also held traces of Otto Drover's blood. But if Eddie had actually done the stabbing, how could the person directing the macabre affair be certain that Eddie would kill with a single blow?

The basement, with its rows of bins, with its beams and projections, made strange and moving shadows as he walked quickly through. In the back yard, there was still more dark.

He used his flash and went directly to the portion of the fence not hidden by the shed.

He used a hold on the top of the fence, and a side of the shed to raise his head above the barrier. Bruce's house was dark, and there was no sound from it. Yet suddenly a darker shape loomed close before him, and he heard a muffled sound.

He had released his hold, dropped back into Mansfield's side of the fence, before he realized the sound came from a cat purring. A cat seated on the long plank observation post for Bruce's pets.

Jim could still feel inquisitive, unseen eyes when he walked along the shed to its door. He used his flash at the door found it locked. He retraced his steps to the basement, found a three-foot length of half-inch pipe, returned to use it to pry the padlock from its hasp. Screws came out of the wood with a protesting splinter. The door hinges creaked a little as he entered the shed workshop.

He found the switch with the aid of his flash, turned on the lights. The whole room appeared to jump into his field of vision with the sudden illumination. It had not changed. Still the power tools at one end, and the miscellaneous pile of what seemed to be discarded articles at the other. With a long, cleared path in between.

Jim went directly to the dressmaker's dummy, examined it carefully now. Jim wondered if it had belonged at one time to Mansfield's ex-wife. Somehow, from Mary Holt's description, he pictured her as a blonde Nordic type. A large woman. The dummy was a solid affair, fixed to a small platform which was on well oiled rollers. Jim turned it around. The back of the dummy was marred and scratched, the black felt which covered it was filled with holes.

He ran his hand over the roughened material. The dummy itself was solid, but there was an opening cut from the back—just between the shoulders—covered only by the cloth.

A strange sound reached Jim then. He moved swiftly back to the light switch, snapped it off. He waited, listening.

He had the fleeting thought it had not been too bright to break the throat hold. He grabbed with his left hand, caught a firm hold in a mop of hair, used the hold as a guide for a right cross. He got a grunt of pain for a reward. A fist went by his head, nearly taking an ear with it.

Jim swung again, realizing that the dark bulk had lost its first violent frenzy, was gasping for breath. Dunn got to his knees, pulled the man upright and swung again. It was only a glancing blow, but his assailant was torn from his grasp, stretched on the floor.

Jim found the light switch. He had his hand on his gun when he looked down into the battered face of Vern Bruce.

Vern Bruce sat up slowly, felt the side of his jaw where a knot was forming. He reached in his pocket, took out a glasses case, and put on his bifocals.

"Guess I'm not as young as I was."

"Not as young as you were when you once killed a man?"

"Know about that, do you? Well, there were mitigating circumstances. And I paid for it. I got mad and lost my head entirely."

"But you still haven't said why you jumped me?"

"Heard something in the shed, and one of my cats was upset. Saw the light inside and came over to investigate. The Cat came with me. When you came outside and hurt my cat well I guess I lost my head."

Jim Dunn touched his eye gingerly. It was rapidly swelling shut, and his head felt as if his skull was flapping. "I'd just turned off the light and was still blinded. I can't see in the dark even if you and your cats can."

Vern Bruce took his words as an apology. "It's all right. I shouldn't have jumped you."

"That man you killed so long ago. Did that have something to do with animals?"

"He was beating a horse," Bruce said.

Jim Dunn was suddenly thankful indeed that Vern Bruce had learned to distrust guns. "Maybe it's a good thing you're here at that. You know anything about power tools, and electric wiring?"

"Sure," Bruce agreed. "You know, I've had a hankering to use some of these tools of Mansfield's. Have it coming to me in one way. Every time he'd come out here and work my radio would go on the fritz. Buzz to beat the Dutch."

"I think you're really going to be a help," Jim said. "At least I think you've cleared up one point. Why Eddie Stone's radio was left going. Eddie got a signal and left his room right away."

Once more the gallery of cats watched them from their balcony on the other side of the fence.

It was 5:30 when Richards arrived. Richards looked from the bruises on Jim's face to the swellings on Bruce's. "What goes on?"

"Never mind that," Jim said. His eye was swollen shut now and he wanted to get this over with. He walked over to the dressmaker's dummy, put the oversize coat around its shoulders. The wire connecting the specially constructed works inside the dummy to the light switch was coiled and hidden, but the long heavy cord which stretched the length of the room was in plain sight. "Ready," Jim said to Vern Bruce. "Start the lathe going."

Bruce pushed a switch. The cord began to wind around a spindle on the lathe as it revolved. The cord tightened. The dummy moved, seemed to come to life. It moved quickly and silently on its oiled wheels, moved at about the pace of a man walking along the cleared path toward the lathe.

Jim Dunn walked along, just behind it. Even now he had to steel himself, had to tell himself it was only his imagination which made the moving dummy resemble the figure, the broad back of Otto Drover. He held a metal ice pick in his hand, and, as the dummy moved past the staring Mark Richards, Jim stabbed the dummy in the back at the exact point where the old coat showed signs of so many previous stabblings.

The dummy moved closer to the lathe, and Bruce turned off the current.

"Wait another minute," Jim demanded. He and Bruce unwound the string, restored the dummy to its original position, recoiled the electric wire which had unrolled as the dummy had moved. "This time, when the dummy moves, you stab it, Mark." He handed the all-metal ice pick to Richards. "Stab it where the heart would be. Understand?"

Richards wet his lips and nodded. He balanced the ice pick in his hand.

"Start the lathe, Bruce," Jim ordered.

Once against dummy started its gliding motion across the floor of the long shed. As Jim had done before, Mark Richards walked behind the dummy, moving into striking position.

He stabbed suddenly. Jim yelled. He was flung back, hit the wall of the shed. The ice pick flew from his hand, narrowly missed Vern Bruce. He kept his feet, and stood there propped against the wall, rubbing his arm which still tingled from the heavy electric shock.

Combining of FHA Offices Is Alarming

WASHINGTON (AP)—

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) said today he is concerned over decision of the Farmers Home Administration to consolidate several of its county offices in Arkansas.

The agency has announced these four count consolidations: Rison with Warren. Ash Flat with Melbourne. Mountain View with Batesville and Heber Springs with Searcy.

Fulbright told a reporter he is concerned because "not only are these closings being made in areas where they are limited facilities for financing farm operations, particularly small farm operations, but they also are in the drought-stricken area."

The senator said he feels that farmers in these areas are entitled to full consideration.

The FHA told Fulbright its reorganization of national and state offices had resulted in savings of 40 per cent in administrative costs in recent months.

A study of FHA at the county level in all states, Fulbright was advised, resulted in certain changes to "equalize workloads in the county offices and provide further economies without affecting service to the farmers."

Under the changes announced for Arkansas, the FHA said, Cleveland County will be served by the Warren office, Sharp by Mc-

Symphony's Future Is in Doubt

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a musician's dream, but for the moment it's over.

Ever since the NBC Symphony Orchestra was formed 17 years ago for the fiery maestro Arturo Toscanini, it has been a sort of mecca for the men who make music.

Today, now that its 87-year-old guiding genius has retired, no one is sure, officially or otherwise, just what the future of America's most widely heard symphony orchestra will be.

"We just don't know yet," a National Broadcasting Co. spokesman said.

Toscanini's plans also are uncertain. For the time being, he's at his Manhattan home, occupied with listening to his orchestra's recent recordings, appraising their quality.

In each case, his word is law as to whether a record shall be released.

State Election Board to Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—

A special meeting of the State Election Board to fill vacancies on county election boards will be held next Monday, Gov. Cherry said yesterday.

The governor, who called the meeting, said the appointments will be effective for any special general elections the county boards may supervise before the November statewide general election.

New boards will be named prior to the November election. Vacancies exist in Carroll, Independence, Saline, Miller, Polk, Cross and Newton counties.

Each county board includes the chairman of the county Democratic committee, the county Republican committee chairman and a third member chosen by the state board.

The state board is composed of the state's seven constitutional officers and the chairman of the state's two major political parties—State Democratic Chairman Leffel Gentry and State GOP Chairman A. L. Barber.

Red Ban Would Make Them Hard to Find

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (U) — Atty. Gen. Brownell flatly opposes any attempt by Congress to pass an act outlawing the Communist party. He says it would make the job of rooting out Communists tougher.

He says he'd rather have a few strengthening changes in present laws.

The government already is working against the Communists in several ways, mainly: (1) the Smith Act, passed in 1940 (2) the Internal Security Act passed in 1950 (3) the government employees' security program, and (4) deportation.

If the party should be outlawed tomorrow the first problem facing the government would be the constitutional one: Did Congress have the right under the Constitution to outlaw the party? Getting the answer would be long drawnout.

Meanwhile, pending the outcome of a test case going all the way up to the Supreme Court, the government wouldn't try any other Communists, using up time and money that would be wasted if the Supreme Court said the law was unconstitutional.

If the court upheld the law, then the government could begin wholesale prosecution of other Communists but that would probably not be for at least two years after the passage of the law.

But the government is making mince meat of the Communist leadership with its present machinery.

For example, the Smith Act of 1940:

Under this act it is unlawful to teach conspiracy to overthrow the government forcibly. In 1949 the government nailed the 11 top Communist leaders in the country on that charge.

They were convicted in October 1949 after a nine-month trial. They appealed, were turned down by the U. S. Court of Appeals, and appealed to the Supreme Court, which upheld their conviction on June 4, 1951.

The government could have prosecuted other party leaders in the meantime but first it wanted to see whether the Supreme Court thought their trial under the Smith Act was constitutional.

It did, but more than two years were used up between the time the 11 were brought to court and the time the high court gave its opinion. Once that was done, the government brought batch after batch of lesser Communist officials to trial.

Brownell said 105 leaders have been indicted under the Smith Act since 1948 and 67 have been convicted so far.

Government workers' security program: Brownell and President Eisenhower set this up in the spring of 1953 as a successor to former President Truman's government workers have been let out.

The administration has been extremely vague on how many of that number were actually Communists. But the program covers persons sympathetic to, or affiliated with, Communists, as well as simple drunks and blabbermouths.

Deportation: The administration is working to drive out of the country subversives who are here as aliens or naturalized citizens. Since January 1953, Brownell says, 200 persons with records of subversive activity or affiliation have been deported.

Internal Security Act of 1950: This was intended to make the Communist party, party members, and front groups register if, after a hearing, the party was found to be a tool of Moscow. The act was set up by the Subversive Activities Control Board to hold the hearings.

It held them for 14 months on the party itself, starting April 23,

Holden, Wife Off on Long Vacation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (U) — Today William Holden and his wife depart on a vacation he richly deserves. Oscar in hand, he stands at the top of his career.

Bill and the missus (Brenda Marshall) are leaving for Bimini Island, off the coast of Florida, here he will fish and study at the Lerner Marine Institute. Then they will head to New York to see the shows and have a ball.

"I'm not coming back until I get the colicwebs out of my mind," says Bill. "I've been working on sheer nerve, going from one picture to another without a day between. When I get home, I'm completely exhausted."

"Luckily, Ardis (his wife's real name) knows what I have been going through. It's not fair to her."

1951, and ending July 1, 1952, after 2,981,000 words of testimony by the government and the party. The board ruled the party was a Moscow tool and ordered it to register. The party refused and went to the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The court will hear the case in a few weeks. No matter how it rules, the party or the government will appeal to the Supreme Court. So a final decision is months away. The Communist party has said neither it nor its members will register no matter what the court decisions. If the high court upholds the act and the board and the members still don't register, they may be arrested in wholesale lots.

and I'm going to make it up to her."

Bill is taking a breather after one of the most impressive strings of starring vehicles within memory. So many top films have been offered him that he has worked almost constantly for 18 months. His string includes: "The Moon is Blue," "Forever Female," "Stalag 17," "Escape From Fort Bravo," "Executive Suite," "Sabrina Fair" with Oscar winners Audrey Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart, "The Bridges at Toko-Ri" and the film he finished last week, "Country Girl."

He has expressed disfavor with only one of those. That is "Forever Female" which he said he did because it was the last of his 14-year contract with Paramount. He now has a 15-year deal that calls for a reported $250,000 for three months' work each year.

How does he get such good pictures? For one thing, he is one of the screen's best, most versatile actors. Unlike a good many of the other top male stars he is still young enough (38) to play a variety of heroes. He is also a smart cookie.

"The studio wanted to put me in a couple of pictures I didn't like," he says. "So I told the bosses to loan me out to other studios. I told them they could keep whatever profit was made on my services."

This maneuver made him available for a wider variety of roles than he would have had if he had stayed at one studio. He has played everything from high comedy to heavy drama.
